

Best Accessories on My Desk

by Noah Ouellette

Working for iPhone Life has many perks—one is having access to the best accessories around.

Be. ones—a iPhone o. and more

Xpal iPower² & XP4001

iPower²: $79.99; XP4001: $69.99
XpalPower.com

Just Mobile Xtand

$39.99 Just-MobileOnly.com

Xtand holds your iPhone vertically or horizontally, and greets so you have your choice of angles. Featuring stylish, solid construction, the stand provides all of the iPhone's features and control cable clutter while plugging in your cable for charging and synchronization.

Eos Wireless Audio System

Core System $169; additional speakers: $99 each EosWireless.com

Eos gives you true multi-room wireless audio without the hassle. Just plug in your Eos base station, slip your iPhone or iPod into its dock, and broadcast your music wirelessly to an Eos speaker. You can also connect to Eos' auxiliary analog input to broadcast audio from any audio source, including XM or Sirius Satellite

The iPhone and iPod touch are powered by an internal battery that has a tendency to run out of juice before the day's over. You can drastically increase battery life with these two accessories from Xpal.

The iPower² (AP1200) is a slip-on battery case that protects and powers your iPhone 3G on-the-go. The slim design hugs your phone and the built-in rechargeable battery doubles your talk or video viewing time.

The XP4001 is an external battery that can charge two devices at the same time. Adapter tips are available for a variety of gadgets, including Bluetooth headsets, digital cameras, portable gaming systems, and most importantly your iPhone and iPod touch.

The XP4001 is an external battery that can charge two devices at the same time. Adapter tips are available for a variety of

Noah Ouellette writes and blogs about new and exciting products for the iPhone and iPod touch. His other responsibilities at iPhone Life include Digital Design and Website Administration at iphonelife.com. noah@iphonelife.com